SUPPORTING PARTNERS

Federal Administration of Civil Protection is a governmental agency in charge of protection and rescue of lives and goods from natural, technological and war accidents and disasters. Among its set of responsibilities among the highest priorities are humanitarian demining, mine victims rescue and explosive ordnance disposal. Its teams also execute underwater EOD, ordnance removal from difficult terrains like natural pits and caves and remote mountain ranges where special techniques must be used. Besides field activities Federal Administration of Civil Protection conducts training in all abovementioned procedures for its own personnel and attendees from other organizations.

Counter-IED Report is a leading international subscription-based publication, which covers the latest developments in the fight against the IED threat. We aim to identify technological advances as well as strategies and tactics for countering threat networks, reduce IED manufacture and placement, assist post-conflict humanitarian demining and capacity building efforts worldwide.
